

Norbury Library Update – July 2020

Construction works continue at Norbury Library with all contractors adhering to social distancing guidelines.

New slates are being fitted to the roof, and the installation of the new rooftop safety system (to ensure that regular maintenance can be carried out safely). When this is complete, the new glazing installation can begin.

The new lift shaft, which will connect the library to the first floor community space, is nearing completion.

Progress on the new lift shaft:

Redecoration of the ground floor space is continuing.

The upgraded heating system is being installed along with new, more efficient, radiators that will be concealed behind radiator covers for additional safety.

The original wooden screening has been uncovered and is being prepared for new glazing.

This will divide the study space and the computer room.

The upstairs community space is being brought back to life, with the new paintwork refreshing the entire space:
